The Newcomb Art Department offers a two-year MA program in Art History that prepares students for careers in museums, galleries, non-profits, and foundations, or for further study at the doctoral level.

- The program emphasizes conceptual thinking, current research methodologies, and critical understanding of art practices within their cultural contexts.

- Faculty members specialize in a wide range of artistic practices, from Pre-Columbian to Contemporary, and the program benefits from affiliate faculty in Tulane’s Department of Classical Studies and the Stone Center for Latin American Studies.

Tulane is a Tier-1 research university located in the dynamic city of New Orleans, an international and culturally rich setting. The city’s highly-regarded arts institutions include the New Orleans Museum of Art, the Contemporary Arts Center, and the Ogden Museum of Southern Art, as well as a number of galleries, artist-run spaces, and the Prospect.New Orleans triennial of contemporary art. Students are encouraged to take advantage of internships at local art institutions such as the New Orleans Museum of Art, and study with museum collections.

Graduates of Tulane’s MA program move into positions in museums, arts organizations, galleries, and auction houses around the country, while some continue in PhD programs at Tulane or elsewhere.

Funding
Generous financial support is available in the form of fellowships and teaching assistantships (approx. $18,130/year) and tuition waivers.

Information and Application:
http://www2.tulane.edu/liberal-arts/art/art-history-masters.cfm
Application deadline February 1 for the next fall.