Feminist Camp
June 2-8, 2013, New York City

Funding available from the Newcomb College Institute

Do you want to spend a week in New York City meeting with feminist organizations and activists?

Feminist Camp is a transformative week of feminism in action hosted in New York City by authors and activists, Jennifer Baumgardner and Amy Richards. Each day is organized by theme—Reproductive Justice, Sexual Power, Feminist Art, Philanthropy, and more—and always includes a Career Day that offers concrete information for entering the work world.

Feminist Camp is different every year, but to give you an idea, here are some places and people they’ve met with in the past:

Feminist Camp is open to all who are interested in learning more about transforming feminist theory into practice. The Newcomb College Institute will provide funding to current freshman, sophomores, and juniors. Funding will cover the $1,500 program fee which includes housing, breakfasts, most lunches for five days, all programming, and a weekly MetroCard. Transportation to New York City will be the responsibility of the participant.

If you are interested in attending, please complete the application form and submit to Laura Wolford at lwolford@tulane.edu by April 5 at 5:00 pm.

For more information, please visit their website at http://www.soapboxinc.com/feminist-bootcamp/
APPLICATION FOR FEMINIST CAMP
Funding from the Newcomb College Institute

Name: _______________________________ Current Year: __________________

Major/Minor: __________________________ GPA: __________________

Local Mailing Address: ______________________________________________

Permanent Mailing Address: __________________________________________

Phone: ___________________ Email: ________________________________

Please respond to the following questions on a separate sheet of paper:

1. Briefly explain your interest in participating in Feminist Camp. What do you hope to gain from this experience?

2. What is your definition of a feminist?

3. The Newcomb College Institute will provide funding which includes housing, breakfasts, most lunches for five days, all programming, and a weekly MetroCard. Other expenses the recipient will be responsible for: airfare, local transportation, and extra spending money. Outline your remaining budget for the trip and source of the funds.

4. Describe your background in women’s and gender studies or your interest in women’s issues and/or law.

5. Please attach an updated resume or list of current activities along with your application.

Once the recipient has returned from the conference, a two-page report of the experience at should be emailed to lwolford@tulane.edu.

Return the application and attachments by April 5 at 5:00 pm to lwolford@tulane.edu