JUDGING AREA (# needed)

Judges (30)

Judges are knowledgeable and objective individuals who have the ability to assess teams fairly and determine which teams earned special awards. Technical judges assess robot design and should have a technical, engineering, or science related background. Project presentation and teamwork judges are individuals who reflect a cross section of the population and, ideally, have an understanding of education, middle-school aged youth, and/or teamwork. The majority of judging takes place in the morning; however, we ask judges to remain for the duration of the competition to congratulate teams and hand out medals and trophies

There are three Judging Areas:

1) Robot Design: A panel of judges interviews teams about the technical hurdles the team faced in their overall robot design, including the attachments and software programs developed for the robot.

2) Teamwork: Teamwork is judged on a team’s ability to be enthusiastic, show partnership, respect for their teammates, support and encouragement for other teams. The FLL Core Values are an important aspect.

3) Project Presentation: Teams will present their project to a panel of judges. The project will have 3 components: a) Identify issues, b) Create an innovative solution, c) Share the research and solution.

Experience And Skills Needed: FLL experience useful, knowledge in specific judging areas is helpful, strong communication, diplomacy skills, ability to collaborate with others, work as a member of a team, good attention to detail, ability to provide critical evaluations in a positive manner, strong assessment skills - a judging rubric is provided, ability to sit for long periods of time.
