Field Day at the Berry Archaeological Site ñ Saturday, June 21

Posted on June 19, 2014 (<http://burkecountychamber.org/2014/06/field-day-at-the-berry-archaeological-site-saturday-june-21/>) by Dorothea Jolly (<http://burkecountychamber.org/author/djolly/>)

Warren Wilson College, Western Piedmont Community College and the Exploring Joara Foundation invite the public to a field day event at the Berry Archaeological Site in Morganton this Saturday, June 21, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Visitors will have the chance to see a portion of the newly discovered moat, which was found during last summer's excavations.

Field day activities at the Berry Site will include archaeology demonstrations, displays of Native American artifacts recovered from the site, hands-on learning activities and pottery demonstrations. Admission is free and parking is available on-site, though $5 donations per car are encouraged. For more information about the event and to learn more about the many other year-round events offered by the Exploring Joara Foundation, visit ExploringJoara.org or call 828-439-2463.
