Exploring Joara is looking for an Executive Director

EJF is seeking a part-time Executive Director (20-30 hours per week with the potential to become a full time position in the future; salary ranging from $35000 - $42000, depending on experience).

The ED will be the “face” of EJF, and will manage EJF, do fundraising, supervise personnel, work with volunteers, and manage the office. The ED should have 2-4 years of experience working with non-profits and be familiar with relevant computer programs. The ED does not have to be an archaeologist.

If you are interested in this position, please send an email expressing interest to carowoman022@gmail.com to receive application documents. Deadline for application submission is July 7, 2014.

2014 Field Day at the Berry site

This past saturday the Warren Wilson College, Western Piedmont Community College, and the Exploring Joara Foundation hosted the 13th annual Field Day at the Berry site. The event was sponsored by Burke County Travel & Tourism and had over 500 visitors from around western North Carolina and
