

October schedule for the EJF :: The Exploring Joara Foundation

<http://www.mynewsletterbuilder.com/email/newsletter/1411494006/>

October 8, 2012

On Friday, September 28th, and Saturday, September 29th, students from Warren Wilson College arrived with Dr. David Moore to continue work from this summer at the Berry Site. These students were learning archaeological field methods as part of their studies. Despite inclement weather, work progressed with some fresh finds. Pictured below are students being trained in excavation techniques.

Below: Elizabeth Greer displaying a pipe bowl fragment

Above: Fern Huffman displays a potentially 16th century Spanish nail discovered that day

We also hosted members of Mars Hill University who came to the Berry site for a tour Friday, September 28th. The visitors enjoyed learning about the Berry site and the history uncovered through the ongoing archaeological research. We want to thank Mars Hill for their continued support of our project and encourage them to visit again.

